

Jasmine Koo
2023 Women's Western Amateur Champion

2023 Year in Review

Women's Western Amateur

2023 RECAP: Jasmine Koo, a 17-year-old from Cerritos, California, outlasted the strongest field in Women's Western Amateur history to become the first junior to win the historic W.A. Alexander Cup since 2015. The international championship at White Eagle Golf Club in July featured:

- » Players from 30 U.S. states and 15 countries
- » 77 unique collegiate women's golf programs represented

2024 PREVIEW: The 124th Women's Western Amateur will return to its founding site—Onwentsia Club in Lake Forest, Illinois—on July 15-20 as a member of the inaugural season of the Women's Elite Amateur Golf Series. Following three rounds of stroke play and a 32-player match play bracket, the champion will receive an exemption into the U.S. Women's Amateur.

Suzie Tran
2023 Women's Western Junior Champion

Women's Western Junior

2023 RECAP: Suzie Tran of Poulsbo, Washington, hoisted the Icelly Cup in July with a comeback victory in the championship match of the 96th Women's Western Junior. Played at Greenbriar Hills Country Club in Kirkwood, Missouri, the event's strongest field ever included:

- » Players from 21 U.S. states and 8 countries
- » 40 collegiate coaches in attendance

2024 PREVIEW: Hinsdale Golf Club in Clarendon Hills, Illinois, will host its fourth WWGA championship when the 97th Women's Western Junior returns to the historic club. Played June 10-14, the competition will feature 36 holes of stroke-play qualifying and four rounds of match play.

History

1901

Held without interruption since 1901, the Women's Western Amateur is the world's oldest annually held championship for women.

1920

First played in 1920, the Women's Western Junior is the oldest national championship for young women.

PAST COMPETITOR ACHIEVEMENTS

142

Professional major championships

358

LPGA Tour victories

20

LPGA Tour Hall of Famers

63

Solheim Cup appearances

NOTABLE PAST WWGA CHAMPIONS

Patty Berg

Nancy Lopez

Stacy Lewis

Marlene Hagge

Louise Suggs

Carol Mann

Conducting WWGA championships would not be possible without our hardworking volunteer Directors. Please contact president Susan Buchanan at president@wwga.org for more information.